Canada's Standard Smoke

New Air Routes

THE NEED OF THE ALLIED NATIONS for air routes for the transport of men and materials have led to the opening up of many new air bases and to the development of much land which had formerly been wilderness. On this continent, territory in Labrador and in the North-West, which was in the past populated very sparsely or not at all, has been built up with modern air bases, and has become as familiar to airmen and their passengers as air ports in the populated areas. This has made great advances in the development of new air routes with bases in this country, both because of their importance to the Allies' war strategy, and because of what they may mean to Canada in times of peace. Recent conferences on post-war avia-tion have given indication that Canada will continue to occupy the important position she now holds in air transport.

Air Route To Middle East While the opening up of new territory on this continent for air bases has attracted considerable interest, it is doubtful whether it is generally known that there has been similar development in Africa, where a chain of great bases has been built to serve the air route to the Middle East. This route, which became a most important one when Italy entered the war in 1940, has contributed a great deal to the progress of the West African Colonies. In addition to the building of bases, many new roads have been constructed and thousands of native Africans have been trained as radio and telephone operators, mechanics and drivers. It is estimated that under ordinary conditions it would have taken several generations to build up a similar body of skilled workmen. In establishing this great chain of air fields which have played such a vital part in supplying Allied forces in the Middle East, Britain also brought many advantages to that section of the Empire.

Many Benefits To Colonies In an article on this subject published recently by the British Ministry of Information, it was stated that the bases which were being built by British engineers twenty years ago, when in jungles and over equatorial swamps and enormous difficulties were encountered in constructing landing fields and runways, have proved their great value in the planning of Mediterranean strategy. Takoradi, on the Gold Coast, was developed into an assembly depot and in one three-month period 1,500 R.A.F. planes were sent from there to the Middle East. The effects of the building up of this air route on the progress of the country are summed up by a British writer as follows: "Thus the British and Colonial Governments, under the stimulus of British enterprise, have in the course of winning the war conferred enormous benefits upon the colonial peoples, which will profoundly influence the whole development of the African continent."

Self-Serve Hotel

Idea Of Proprietors In Illinois Has Proved A Success

Taking a tip from self-service marks the Odrizzi brothers of St. Paul, Ill., converted their 15-room hotel into a "help yourself" inn a year ago.

The wartime pinch, which sent service standards of most hotels hurtling earthward and closed the doors of others, merely prodded the ingenuity of Louis and Victor Odrizzi.

When their desk clerk got his "greetings" from Uncle Sam there was no gnashing of teeth nor haunting of local employment agencies. Equipping the desk in the lobby with a supply of checkbooks, an open register and keys to all 15 rooms, the Odrizzis decided to let John Q. Public look out for himself. A sign above the door instructs the guest to "Help yourself" and deposit money in one of the envelopes along with his name, address and room number and climb upstairs to pleasant dreams, dragging his luggage behind him.

As well as curbing the employment headache, managing a co-op hotel has given the Odrizzis a new confidence in their fellow man. Asked whether the "honor system" of collecting room rent didn't prove an expensive proposition, Victor came back with an emphatic "No!"

"Not one penny have we lost since we hit on this idea a year ago," he said. "The hotel is filled every night mostly with transient trade and every morning the money is waiting on the desk when we come to collect." What's more, our customers don't walk off with linens, towels, ash trays and everything else that isn't nailed down."

Hog Production

Alberta Is Far In The Lead For 1944

Figures of hog production in Canada for the first nine months of 1943 show that Alberta is still leading the pack. Up to the end of September Alberta had accumulated 2,201,000 to the sum of her inter-commodity channels, eventually to feed Allied armed forces. Ontario stood second with 1,553,000; Saskatchewan third with 1,454,000; and Manitoba fourth with 636,000.

Alberta's marketed increased 60,000 this year over last, or about 40 per cent, but there are signs that production is now falling off. Let's bridge Herald.

Price Control And Rationing Information

Q. The other day I noticed a sign placed in the restaurant where I was eating which advised the customers that they were only entitled to one cup of coffee or tea per meal. I was under the impression that more than one could now be had.

A. Some restaurants are still displaying signs stating that government regulations require them to give only one serving of tea or coffee per meal. These signs are misleading. Restaurants may limit servings of tea and coffee if they wish but must do so on their own authority. There is no general government regulation. The Wartime Prices and Trade Board regulations state, however, that sugar for tea or coffee is to be served in restaurants only with the first cup.

Q. Is it necessary to have an essentiality certificate in order to buy a new oil or gas furnace?

A. Essentiality certificates are no longer required to purchase new hot air furnaces. Use of such certificates has saved sufficient furnaces to meet essential requirements. Available supplies will be permitted to move in the normal way.

Q. Is there going to be another in the butter rationing?

A. The butter ration is being reduced from seven ounces per person a week to six ounces per person a week by making butter coupons valid one month instead of in pairs and by having each month three of these coupons becoming good each month. The butter ration card will remain valid until declared valid like sugar and preserves can posts.

Q. When applying for coupons for example, will it necessary to present your ration book with you?

A. Yes definitely, you must present your No. 5 ration book when applying for canned milk.

Please send your questions or request for the pamphlet "Consumers News" or the Blue Book in which you will find the latest prices mentioning the name of this paper to the nearest Wartime Prices and Trade Board office in your province.

Had To Be Last

Bomb Finally Finished Kicking Career Of French Army Mile

The services of animals in war time are so often taken for granted that it is consoling to learn that at least one memorial has been erected in France to a mule. The inscription reads: "In memory of Maggie who in her time kicked two colonels, four majors, ten captains, twenty-four lieutenants, forty-two sergeants, four hundred and thirty-two other ranks and one Miles-a-mile." Her long life was probably due to the order in which she did her army kicking—Manchester Guardian.

CAUSES FOR WEARINESS

The New York Times says: The British were fighting Hitler, part of the time almost alone, two years ago when the Japanese landed to invade the war. If we are tired of practice blackout, food restrictions, casualty lists and high taxes, what of them? The British people have stood up magnificently against every weapon Hitler could throw against them.

The reasons for this change in the victory outlook are set forth by Vice-Palmer, general manager of the British Tidwell Press, who, after a summing up of the Western Front, analyzed the factors which are holding up the Allied advances and summarized them as follows:

(1) Shifts stubborn, capable German resistance.

(2) Lack of full quota of supplies along the front particularly shells and gasoline.

(3) The weather which frequently denies the use of overwhelming Allied air superiority and makes employment of tanks difficult.

(4) The terrain.

(5) Transportation difficulties especially lack of ports plus long supply lines.

(6) The will of the German people, that far, to resist, including standing up to the pulverizing Allied air bombardment.

Mr. Tracy admits that Germany cannot possibly win the war unless it battened down to the bone, and he adds that such mode of fighting, costly in men and material, must still take place. It will certainly be no picnic for those who have to do the fighting and definitely no time for those at home to cease parting with their uttermost efforts in support of our troops. We know that victory is certain, but must work hard to attain it. —St. Thomas Times-Journal.

LARGEST DAIRY FARM

Although India is typically a country of smallholders, averaging from 1 to 5 acres, it boasts the largest dairy farm in the world. This comprises about six military dairy farms established several years ago to supply fresh milk butter and cream to the families of military personnel and Europeans in the Civil Service and covers 96,000 acres!

King Solomon's Mines

Uncover Traces Of An Ancient Civilization In Africa

A British scientist conducting an archaeological investigation in the foothills area in Rhodesia, South Africa, has uncovered traces of an ancient civilization in the Zimbabwe district. They are formations and terraces used by an ancient people for agricultural purposes.

And so well built were irrigation channels to the terraces that not an inch of rainfall would be lost in several miles of territory.

There were ancient dwellings of many civilizations, relics of the Stone and Bronze Ages, and Chinese writings. Copper mines and gold diggings, probably used 2,000 years ago, were also uncovered by Mr. Rooster.

British and South African engineers who have examined the sites of these lost peoples who may have furnished gold for Solomon were amazed of the ingenuity of the ancient builders.

And into this long forgotten industrial plateau, factory sites and the remains of dwellings of a new Commonwealth development may be fitted when peace is won.

King Solomon's mines are reported to have been sited in the fabulous country of Phœnic, which some historians say was in East Africa.

Professor B. A. S. MacAlister, the famous explorer, said: "The centre of speculations is a group of extensive ruins at Zimbabwe, Mashonaland, the ancient ruins referred to in the Rossiter report.

Canada's Food Output

Production Next Year Will Be Adequate For All Needs

There will be plenty of food in Canada in 1945 to satisfy Canadian appetites which are bigger than ever before. This is the belief of A. M. Shaw, chairman of the agricultural supplies board, which has directed Canada's food output since the beginning of this war.

Besides being able to fill the stomachs of Canadian civilians and those in the armed forces and meet its overseas contracts, Mr. Shaw is confident Canadian agriculture can help UNRRA feed the liberated peoples of Europe if such help is required. The Dominion has already supplied a large amount of wheat to UNRRA.

The latest survey by an Allied combined food board committee reveals that Canada in 1944 ate 10 per cent more than they did in the war years and four per cent more than in 1943. But despite growing appetites, Mr. Shaw believes there will be as much food, and probably more, in Canada's national pantry in March, 1945, when it hits its annual low point, as there was at the same time this year.

Eating habits developed by Canadians during the war, especially by those in the services, may affect Canada's agriculture favorably in peace in Mr. Shaw's opinion.

HONORABLY ACQUITTED

A man was being tried for misappropriating a pig, and a conscientious witness to whom the accused was said to have confided, was being examined.

"Can you repeat the exact words in which the prisoner confessed to taking the pig?" asked the counsel.

"He said, sir, he took the pig."

The Judge tried to simplify the question. "Did the prisoner say, 'He took the pig' or 'I took the pig'?"

"Oh, your honor, he said he took it. Your honor's name wasn't even mentioned."

An inmate went to a public library and asked for a copy of Dante's Inferno. When the book was presented he looked at it dubiously and asked: "Is it the best authority on the subject?"

Teacher—What did the Prince do to wake the Sleeping Beauty?

Mary—I don't know.

"Which would you prefer in your future—husband—wealth, ability or appearance?" asked the pretty girl.

"Appearance, my dear," replied the spinster, "but he's got to appear pretty soon."

Mistress: "This food tastes terrible. Did you salt it?"

New Cook: "Yes, ma'am, but I never used that brand before. It was called Epsom salts."

Addressing a political gathering, a speaker gave his hearers a touch of the patriotic. "Mists," he said, "hardship may not unmans a man, but miss many of the old faces I used to shake hands with."

"I love your daughter, sir. I would suffer to my dying day if I should ever cause her a moment's pain."

"You're right, young man, you would. I know that girl."

Has New Title

Queen Elizabeth Has Been Made A BENCHER Of The Inn

Queen Elizabeth recently added a new title to those she already holds. She was made a BENCHER of the Inn.

In a 10-minute traditional ceremony, the Queen enrolled as a student in the Middle Temple (law courts), was called to the bar, and was called to the bench. It takes an exceptional law student years to follow the same procedure.

The Queen became the first woman bencher of the Middle Temple. Queen Mary is a BENCHER of Lincoln's Inn, King George of the Inner Temple, the Duke of Windsor of the Middle Temple, and the Duke of Gloucester of Gray's Inn.

The traditional dinner which follows the Queen's call to the bench was omitted because of bomb damage to the law courts.

Applicant: "I do, but I promised my wife I'd really ask for a job today, and that's why I applied."

Husband: "What extravagance, you have two hats to match that one dress?"

Wife: "Oh, no, I haven't. I've only one dress to match the two hats."

Tim: "What was the cause of the collision at that corner today?"

Jim: "Two motorists after the same pedestrian."

Shannon: "Do you know a fellow down your way with one leg named Wilson?"

Dubious (doubtfully)—Well, now, I'm not sure. What's the name of his other leg?"

Problem Of Supply

Plan For Servicing Invasion Army Worked Out By Women

It is estimated that there are from 1,500,000 to 2,000,000 Allied troops directly in the fighting line against the Germans in France, Belgium and Holland, and another 500,000 performing auxiliary duties elsewhere. Contemplation of these figures gives one an idea of the tremendous problem of supply which is so important in the job of winning the war.

The number of men is equal to the population of a city the size of Chicago. Supplying Chicago with all its needs is a routine job because Chicago has grown over a period of 100 years during which thousands of stores, warehouses and means of communication have been developed. But these 2,500,000 men on the Western front represent a problem that has grown up quite suddenly. Not one of them was there at the beginning of June. They have been delivered there in the course of 18 weeks, and everything they have needed had to be shipped across the English Channel, landed in makeshift or inadequate harbors, under most difficult conditions; millions of shells and billions of rounds of small-arms ammunition, tens of thousands of guns, hundreds of thousands of vehicles, millions of gallons of gasoline, food for that huge new population, and a multitude of types of equipment and devices that had to make up the phanerophaera of a modern army. Before they landed there was nothing there; now there are just two and a half million men, need from day to day.

It is not generally known that the problem of working out what the invasion armies would need was done by women. The job was given to 26 British university women who were skilled as actuaries. They spent a year on their task, and had everything figured out to the last tick-tack. They and the men who carried out the job, have played a tremendous part in the "Second Front." Alberta Coal

Syndicate Acquires Property West Of High River

A syndicate of Canadian, British and American financiers has acquired extensive coal properties along the Highwood River, west of High River, Alberta, and plans to develop a mine there in the near future with an initial expenditure of $2,000,000. Mr. R. O. Sweeney, Montreal financier, announced recently.

REDUCE SHRINKAGE

A non-shrinkable wool sock may be just around the corner. The United States Bureau of Standards has reported a new process has reduced shrinkage of wool socks issued to the army to about five per cent, in contrast to about 20 or 25 per cent, for untreated socks. The process, involving calcium hypochlorite, also makes the socks last 60 per cent longer.

Tin was the first mineral mined in England.

Rail Workers Set All Canada Loan Record

In the Seventh Victory Loan, the largest aggregate subscription to be made by any group of employees came from the men and women of the Canadian National System. Investing $12,753,550 they exceeded their Sixth Loan record by $4,606,450 and set a new record for all Canada. Including employees of Trans-Canada Air Lines and National Railways Monitors Limited, there were 90,779 subscribers, 111 more than in the previous loan campaign.

Total subscriptions by Canadian National employees in the seven loans amounted to $49,785,250. With parches of Victory bonds by the company, aggregating $90,556,900, the grand total was $140,342,150.

The photograph, showing a cross-section of C.N.R. workers gathered about the Railways' newest 6000-type engine, is symbolic of the Railways' united effort. Train crews, shop forces, roundhouse workers, office and station staffs, maintenance of way and telegraph, engineering, express, cartage, hotel and steamship workers men and women all over the Dominion threw themselves enthusiastically into the campaign. Before the loan drive ended, they were away over the top.

Total subscriptions by Canadian National employees in the seven loans amounted to $49,785,250. With par-

R. C. Vaughan, Chairman and President of the National System, when the final returns were in, issued a message of congratulations to the 2,500 volunteer canvassers and their 91,000 fellow employees on their record performance.

D. C. Grant, Vice-President in charge of finance and accounting, headed the system campaign organization. The loan drive in the Railways' three regions—Atlantic, Central and Western was personally supervised by the vice-presidents in charge, J. P. Johnson, J. F. Pringle, and W. R. Devine respectively.

Post-War Tourist Trade Curious Place Names

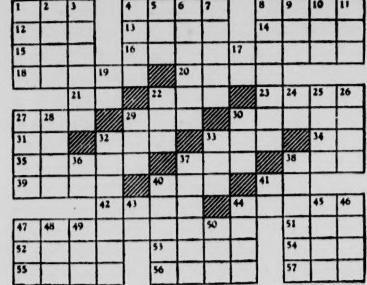

Cannot Be Built Up Without Considerable Effort

The Brockville Recorder and Times says we cannot expect that Canada's post-war tourist industry will be built up without effort or considerable expense because there is every evidence that other countries will be seeking tourist business just as intensively as we will seek it and for similar reasons.

The tourist dollar represents net gain to the country in which it is spent and there will be few parts of the world which will not welcome it with open arms in order to bolster their economies after the war.

As a matter of fact, there is already ready every sign that our competitors for this business, including countries overseas, intend to go after it in a most thorough manner.

REG'LAR FELLERS—Wartime Hardship

Must Pay Price

Wodehouse Not Smart Enough To Know Germans Used Him

P. G. Wodehouse, a British writer who has a widespread reputation for his humorous fiction, probably is a fool rather than a person of Nazi sympathies.

Wodehouse has been quoted as saying he had no "belligerent feeling" towards the Germans, and obviously England is no place for him now. Britain has no time for patience for little girls who don't know what any word is about. But Wodehouse seems more a simple-minded fellow than a villain. He was not smart enough to realize that the Germans gave him freedom in Germany and let him broadcast not because they were good fellows, or because they liked his books, but because they considered his radio talks would have value as propaganda. However innocently Wodehouse got into the mess he let himself be used by the Germans and now he must pay the price in the contempt of decent people.

HUTTERITE LAND RESTRICTION

A report from Ottawa states that within a short time the Department of Justice will be giving consideration to the most recent statute of the Alberta Legislature banning the acquisition of lands in the province by the sect of Hutterites.

It will be remembered that a previous statute on this subject was disallowed, federally, on the grounds that, in addition to Hutterites it included alien enemies. It was held that in wartime particularly, such aliens come under the jurisdiction of the Dominion.

The Alberta statute referred to above has the approval of a large percentage of the people of southern Alberta, particularly in districts where Hutterite colonies are located. While this sect is thrifty and capable of looking after themselves, they do not make for the advancement of the district, nor the towns that surround them. They take no part in community enterprises, are regarded as poor neighbors, and control lands which would otherwise support many good settlers.

The present Alberta Act, however, has other good reasons for barring the sale of further lands to the Hutterites. In times like the present the Hutterites are profiting by the high farm income. They have plenty of help and can handle more land if necessary. Their good Canadian neighbor, on the other hand, has sent his boys to the army and with the lack of help in many cases has been forced to give up his farm. The Hutterites, always eager to increase their holdings for future generations, are right there to buy out their patriotic neighbor, and it is with this mind that the legislative act was passed.

The Dominion Government would be well advised to allow the act to stand. If the Hutterites are allowed to purchase land in Alberta during the next 30 years, on the same scale as they have done during the past two decades, they will own practically all of Southern Alberta. This would be tragedy for the Province.

REFERENCE WORK

Two men working side by side in the War Production Board in Washington never spoke, but each watched the other. One man quit work daily at four o'clock, while the other always worked till six or later. Finally the harder worker approached the other, "I beg your pardon," he said, "Do you mind telling me how you clean up all your work every day at four o'clock?"

"Not at all. When I come to a tough piece of detail, I mark it 'Refer to Commander Smith.' I figure that in an outfit as large as this there is sure to be a Commander Smith and I must be right. None of these papers come back to me."

"Brother," said the hard worker, removing his coat, "prepare for action. I'm Commander Smith."

CANADA REVIEWS HER POSITION

During this year Canada became the second greatest exporting nation in the world and maintained her place as fourth largest producing country on earth. When it is remembered that, in addition, more than 1,000,000 Canadians have joined the armed forces and that Canada has extended billions in aid to Britain and other United Nations, this country's 1944 war record probably surpasses the previous achievements of any nation of less than 12,000,000 people.

It took leadership, organization and vision at the top to accomplish this as well as the hard work and earnest co-operation of all Canadians. It required sacrifices, overseas and at home. But how necessary all this is to maintain a free Canada has been once more demonstrated by the desperate German drive into Belgium at a time when victory seemed near.

TODAY'S FARMER IS BUSY AND PROSPEROUS

In many ways the war has helped the farmer. The production and sale of food products has been considerably stepped up and in most cases he benefits from better prices. With his income thus increased, he has been able to pay off many of his debts, and very likely now has money to invest.

On the other hand there are many difficulties of farm management that have increased in number and complexity due to the war. Among these there is the matter of farm finance. The decisions of individual farmers with respect to earning, borrowing, spending, saving and investing are critically important to the Nation at large.

How much to spend, how much to save, what is the best investment of savings—these are the key problems which the farmer must intelligently solve for his own and Canada's future well-being.

Farmers who are looking ahead to the years after the war should be turning over in their minds now the changes and improvements they would like to make. They must plan for the modernization of their set-up—new stock, new buildings, better equipment—which will make work more convenient and eliminate as much as possible the drudgery of daily tasks.

ASKS TO HAVE LAND CLEARED
The Saskatchewan government has asked the federal government to clear 300,000 acres of arable land in the Carrot River district of north-eastern Saskatchewan in order that returned men may be settled thereon. The Saskatchewan government will not permit the settlement of veterans on pioneer lands unless at least 80 acres on each holding are cleared and ready for cultivation.

TIGHTEN USED CAR REGULATIONS

Effective immediately, a new order by the Wartime Prices and Trade Board, revise price regulations, requires the licensing of all used car dealers. The cost is calculated to ensure equitable distribution of used cars at fair prices.

For the purpose of the order, cars for sale are divided into two types, reconditioned and non-reconditioned, and every car for sale by dealer must bear this information on the price tag. In cases of non-reconditioned types, the tag must show the estimated cost of restoring the car to good operating condition. Ceiling prices announced last August now apply only to cars sold by dealers as reconditioned. The same range of prices, less the cost of restoring the car to good operating condition or at least 10 per cent of the ceiling price, covers other types, whether sold by dealers or private individuals. Under the new regulation, the schedule provides that ceiling prices on cars 10 years old and over are 25 per cent of the value when new.

When a dealer sells a car as reconditioned, a 30-day warrant in favour of the purchaser is implied. All cars found in poor operating condition within the 30-day period must be repaired or replacement made at a dealer's expense, exceeding 50 per cent of the lawful maximum price allowed for labour and parts.

All persons operating or intending to start a business of buying or selling used cars must apply to the Board for permits if they intend to continue such business after March 31, 1945. No permit will be issued to dealers without facilities for repairing or reconditioning cars. After March 31, no one will be issued a new permit may be issued in used cars.

Dealers may not retain more vehicles for personal or service use than they operated at any time during 1943.

MEAT EXPORTS

Meats and meat products exported from Canada during the year ended March 31, 1944, show an increase of 208,452,214 pounds, or about 24 per cent, over the total of the preceding year, the number of animals slaughtered under inspection was 2,408,515 in excess of that of the year before.

Dealers may not retain more vehicles for personal or service use than they operated at any time during 1943.

OUR COMPLETE SHORT STORY—

NUMBER ONE LESSON

By HELEN PARTCH

McClure Newspaper Syndicate

Alice took a long pull at his cold soda. He started to speak when the girl murmured, "Her's Dan now?" She lifted her head defiantly. "Hello, Dan."

Alice introduced the two men. Her eyes held Dan's. Alice tried to read their expression. Suddenly a man on Alec's other side grabbed his arm. "Hey, Alec, give me a hand, will you?" Anna was passing out with the heat. It was Rod Lewis, a friend. He looked worried and upset. His wife was leaning heavily against him.

"We must catch this bus," Dan said to Alice. "Excuse us, won't you?" He moved to the others, caught Alice by the arm, and whirled her away.

Waiting, Alice started after them. They didn't hear.

Rod and Alec met Anna to the ear. Alec's face was grim. His eyes were on the road and on a yellow bus disappearing in the distance.

Rod offered him a lift home. "Anna will be all right as soon as we get moving."

"All right," Fool Nitwit! Sucker!

Rod dropped Alec into his apartment. Alec ran up the steps of the building. In the lower hall on a bench sat Ted. He looked sheepish. "I've been waiting for you," he tossed Alec his wallet. "Missed this?"

Ale stared. Incredibly, suspicion, rage darkened his eyes.

Ted smiled wryly. "Goon. Hit me. I took it to teach you a lesson. The idea went sour when I thought it over. What's the matter? Heat get you, or were you worried?"

"Oh no! Money is nothing in my life!" Alec dropped on the bench beside Ted. His eyes narrowed thoughtfully. "You sell to Smith and Belles. Know a girl there named Alice Crocker?"

"Sure, Belles' secretary. A peach!"

"A peach?" Alec's mouth twisted in a grim. "You don't realize it, wise guy, but that girl owes you a good slap in the face!"

"You? Why?"

"You? Say?" Alice looked at the wide eyes, the parted lips, the white throat, where a little pulse beat fast. "Tell you about?"

"I did."

"You? Say?" Alice looked at the wide eyes, the parted lips, the white throat, where a little pulse beat fast. "Tell you about?"

"I did."

"This is a place for you. Roughnecks, pickpockets, gamblers—" In a flash Alec's mind went back an hour. He had taken a shower at the Woodlawn Club after a bout of tennis with Ted Graham. Alec had put on his coat and dropped his billfold carelessly into the side pocket. Ted said, "Why don't you give that to me?" Better than having it lifted."

Alec had grunted and started to transfer his money to a safer place. Andy Noyes had come up. They had talked a minute. Alec had run for the bus. The fare was in his change purse. He remembered the wallet now. He hated to reach into his pocket, the pocket where the girl's bracelet had caught. He did reach, slowly. The billfold was gone.

Ale sat in stunned silence, his eyes on the track. He knew what he must do and he hated to do it. He could see withing looking at them, a pair of red lips, and the threat where a little pulse beat faintly. His mouth was dry. He turned abruptly. Blue eyes lit up to his questioning. "Pine and?" Alec smiled crookedly. "He said, 'It's hot. Want a cool drink?'"

"I'd love it!"

They left the stand and walked to a form to the Alec asked, "Will you tell me your name?"

"Of course, Alice Crocker."

Elmwood probably. "Um Alec Newcomb?" Said? He glanced at the large white handbag the girl carried. "I wonder why you are here alone? Not that it's any of my business."

"It's fascinating."

"This is a good place to lose hard-earned money."

"I know it. I'm a stenographer at Smith and Belles. Dan would kill me if he knew I came here."

"Dan?"

"Dan's my brother. None of my crowd cares for the races."

Ale's brows knif in sardonic amusement. What a line! He said. "I've been in Smith and Belles a number of times. I never noticed you."

"I'm in Mr. Belles' private office."

Face Great Odds

Canadian Fighter Pilots Now Operating Further Into Germany

Canadian fighter pilots now on their second tour of operations are facing greater odds than ever before, they believe, since fighter casualties have been higher during the last few months than at any time since the war began.

"The risk will become greater as we get into Germany," said Capt. Ldr. Arthur Sager of Veneciano, commanding officer of a Spitfire squadron in Belgium.

"Spitfires are not intended to stand up against the flak and the guns we have to face now," he said.

At the same time the average age of fighter pilots in the R.C.A.F. squadrons appears to be rising. When a couple of years ago the average age was 21 to 22 years, the men now appear to be around 25 years.

Although air training shortly will cease in Canada, fighter pilots who already had made an important contribution to the air war have returned to do second tours, and this is responsible for the rising average age.

In this squadron, those on their second tour included Sqn. Ldr. Sager, FO, Albert Thomas of Winnipeg, FO, W. J. Sherrill of Brandon, Sask., Flt. Lt. Chuck Charsworth of Brandon, and Flt. Lt. Phil Blades of Victoria.

Each man was doing a second tour because he had chosen to do so, but their eyes were tired and they looked older than their years.

If a man's honest he'll admit he's tired when he gets around the end of his second tour," the C.O. said.

"Sitting around thinking about flying, waiting to go up, is almost as much of a strain as flying itself," Charsworth said.

Interesting Experience

Newspaper Correspondent Dodges Nazis For Two Months

Any time newspaperman Paul Morris turns his hand to fiction and goes in for spy stories, he won't have to use his imagination. He can draw on his own experience as a British agent 200 miles behind the German lines.

Two months of ducking Nazis in northern Italy—battling them when necessary—and finally escaping through their lines gave him enough adventure to fill a couple of best-sellers, and made the Nazis a headache for two to four hours.

Sporting the wings of a British army paratrooper on the tunic of his war correspondent's uniform, the Canadian newswriter has returned to the Dominion to represent the London Express in Canada. Before going overseas he had worked for the Halifax Herald and the Toronto Star, and he went into Italy as correspondent of the Star.

Near the little cottage where Col. John McCrae, writer of "In Flanders Fields," was born, a memorial garden to the poet will be established, a dispatch from Gheluwe says. Nothing could be more appropriate than a memorial garden to the man who immortalized the poppy, particularly those blooming "between the crosses row on row" in Flanders' Fields, states the Lethbridge Herald.

These are the first four countries in which the Memorial Garden movement has been organized: France, Belgium, Holland and the United States.

SKATES AND BOOTS FOR THE ARMED FORCES

An urgent appeal for unused skates and boots for the use of members of Canada's fighting forces overseas has been issued by military authorities.

An appeal was made some time ago, according to a report from Y.M.C.A. headquarters which is in charge of collections, the response to date has been most disappointing.

Skates and boots are needed so that the troops overseas may engage in skating and hockey recreation.

Anyone having skates or boots not in use which they wish to donate for use of the troops should forward them to the nearest Y.M.C.A. office or to the Auxiliary Services Officer, Military District 13, Calgary.

Arrangements have been made to send all donations overseas promptly.

ALBERTA POST WAR SURVEY PLAN LAUNCHED

The thousands of questionnaires being distributed in Alberta this week are designed to accurately determine the direct and indirect job-making potentialities of farmers, householders and businessmen in the immediate post-war years.

The distribution of questionnaires and interviews will be done by hundreds of volunteer workers who are lending their support to the survey plan.

All answers given on the questionnaire forms and those given verbally to interviewers will be kept in strict confidence and will be used in bulk with answers given by the other hundreds of farmers, householders and businessmen. Each name is protected by a code number known only to committee members and workers.

Householders will be asked to list their planned post-war expenditures on such things as home building, furniture, household equipment and appliances, clothing and other details. They also will be asked for information on how they plan or hope to finance the purchase of these items, either through savings, current income, installed credit or borrowing.

Farmers will be asked to list their post-war plans for their farms, including expenditures, possible expansion and for a listing of the post-war plans of other members of the family. They will be requested for detailed facts on present farm equipment and on what they hope to obtain in the immediate post-war years. Their planned financing of this also will be asked.

Alberta businessmen, both large and small, will be asked for the most detailed questions. The survey seeks to learn salary schedules paid, number of employees, number of servicemen employees returning, what type of employment can be offered disabled veterans, the number of additional skilled workers required to operate the business at full capacity.

Other questions to the businessmen will seek out their planned business expansion after the war and if it involves new buildings or extensions to present plants. Other general questions deal with planned purchases of equipment, what various types of equipment will be sought and how all this will be financed.

NOTICE TO SUBSCRIBERS

A number of subscriptions to The Didsbury Pioneer are now due and payable. We are on a newsprint quota and are not supposed to send papers to subscribers more than three months in arrears. Please let us have your renewal as soon as possible. The label on your paper tells the date to which your paper is paid.

MOST OF US DON'T KNOW

Hardly anyone—not even the publisher—knows how important a newspaper is to a community.

The smaller the town, the more important the newspaper is in its economic life. Its news, editorials and feature stories focus the interest of surrounding territory on the place in which the paper is published.

This force and the force of advertisements by local merchants build an ever-widening trade area. This means more business, more money for schools, homes and churches—a bigger and better town.

A town with a newspaper is a town with a future. The better the paper, the brighter the future.

It deserves the support of every business man in that town.

We are trying to make this paper worthy of our town. Your help and suggestions are appreciated.
